Trinity Episcopal School of Charlotte unveiled its new outdoor classroom on Nov. 7. This new outdoor learning facility gives faculty the opportunity to teach a wide array of lessons in a natural setting while teaching them to honor and appreciate nature.

Trinity Episcopal School is recognized as a schoolyard habitat by the National Wildlife Federation, with its campus gardens consisting of a butterfly garden, keyhole vegetable garden, composting bin, Three Sisters' container garden and N.C. native prairie gardens. Harvesting potatoes, planting tulips, maintaining bird feeders, banding trees and cleaning Little Sugar Creek are examples of some student-led activities. Details: www.tescharlotte.org; 704-358-8101.
